4. The proposed admittee has never been disbarred, suspended, or denied admission to practice law in any jurisdiction except as described below.

a. Mr. Levy was admitted to the Michigan Bar in 1977, applying there because, when he took the bar exam, he was clerking for a judge in Detroit. Mr. Levy maintained that membership for many years after moving to the District of Columbia following his judicial clerkship, but took inactive status, which at the time meant there was no dues requirement. Unbeknownst to Mr. Levy, the Michigan Supreme Court ruled that inactive members would have to pay dues; Mr. Levy's Michigan license was eventually suspended for non-payment of those dues. When Mr. Levy learned of this change, he resigned from the Michigan Bar.

b. Mr. Levy was admitted to the U.S. District Court for the District of Maryland in early 1978 because Hon. R. Dorsey Watkins, before whom Mr. Levy appeared in a TRO hearing at the outset of Brink v DaLesio, 667 F.2d 420 (4th Cir. 1981), in January of that year, made clear that he preferred lawyers to be fully admitted to this Court's bar rather than being admitted pro hac vice. Many years later, the Court imposed a requirement of periodic fees. Mr. Levy received no notice of that rule and was suspended for nonpayment. When Mr. Levy learned of the new rule, he resigned from the Court's bar.
